Bachelor of Arts (Accountancy) · Certified Practising
Accountant · Registered Tax Agent · Chartered Tax Adviser

PRINCIPAL

My professional passion lies in sharing the journey of my clients' business life cycles. Often, the journey may take us to a destination they didn't think possible or that might not have been reached if they were travelling alone.

Ask Tom what the highlights of his 40-plus years accounting career have been and the answer revolves around helping organisations reach their potential - ensuring the sustainability of not-for profits, developing and guiding small business growth strategies and developing management reporting systems to guide the success of professional services firms.

With acknowledged expertise in strategic business planning applied in both advisory board roles and as a consultant, Tom has specialist industry knowledge of Cooperative Research Centres, real estate, and small to medium enterprises more generally.

DAVID CHARLESWORTH

Director - Assurance Services · Joined Lee Green in 2002 · Bachelor of Business (Accountancy) · Chartered Accountant · Registered Company Auditor · Self Managed Super Fund Auditor

There are times on life's journey when it pays to know where you are and where the risks lie. That's my role as a strategic accountant and as an auditor - helping organisations understand their current financial position, assisting reporting and governance, and providing the intelligence required to inform sound leadership decisions and mitigate risks.

It's David's job to know where the money is - and it's a job that's taken him to most States and Territories and places as remote as the Tiwi Islands and South Goulburn Islands in the Arafura Sea. (Who says auditors lead boring lives?) His expertise includes auditing Statutory Accounts for the private sector and not-for-profits, Outgoings, Trust Accounts and Self Managed Super Funds. David has particular expertise in the Aged Care sector.

He also applies his professional expertise on a pro bono basis as Auditor for the Cancer Care Centre and Cystic Fibrosis SA. He's a keen follower of Australian Rules footy through the Cove Football Club - and loves a spot of fishing!

Agent · Approved SMSF Auditor

I always strive to help my clients see past the numbers, providing a sounding board for business and personal ideas and optimising financial outcomes to achieve future goals. Being a part of this journey with our clients is what really makes my role enjoyable.

Being an accountant is so much more than sitting behind a desk; it's visiting clients, developing relationships, understanding their businesses, all while meeting compliance obligations and keeping an eye on the bigger picture. Ben is often on-hand to assist his colleagues and clients with technical issues or just to discuss any queries.

Working at Lee Green has been pivotal in helping him reassess how he advises clients, facilitating more meaningful discussions to help them run their businesses more effectively.

Relay for Life is on Ben's annual calendar, and he volunteers for Meals on Wheels frequently. On the weekends, Ben values his time with his wife and three children, exploring South Australia, cooking and sports.

Being a valued advisor is more than responding to clients' needs - it's knowing their business as well as they do so you can provide the most relevant and up to date advice and truly partner with them on their journey to success.

Tsepak is a keen problem-solver and spends each day dedicated to not just supporting his clients, but also training and guiding the staff around him. Always focused on the next generation of accountants, Tsepak makes time each day to capitalise on any learning opportunities to share with the team.

With a passion for technological improvement, Tsepak has an eye for how to take advantage of the latest software developments to improve and streamline client and internal systems.

Contributing significant industry experience and knowledge, Tsepak specialises in small businesses, professional services, self-managed superannuation funds, and the real estate sector.

Beyond solving problems for his clients, Tsepak also loves being able to simplify or manage his client's accounting needs so they can focus on achieving their financial goals, growing their business, or simply enjoy more free time. Outside of the office, Tsepak loves spending time with his family and especially loves watching his two sons grow.

I love every aspect of coming to work each day at Lee Green. Whether it's working with clients or with our junior staff to help them along their professional learning journey, it's being able to work closely with others and give them a hand that makes my day.

SAMANTHA HUGHES

Bachelor of Commerce (Accounting) · Certified Practising Accountant

Working with colleagues that you get along with makes life more enjoyable for Samantha and leads to a more engaging environment and better client outcomes. Having a broad client base and plenty of variety also helps.

Highly personable, Samantha mentors junior staff and enjoys meeting clients to discuss their requirements. She spends much of her time processing clients' information to enable her to prepare financial statements, management reports and income tax returns. She also performs government acquittal reporting, processes self-managed super funds and prepares reports for government funding bodies.

Samantha spends time away from work chasing her toddler. For something completely different, she supports the not-for-profit Wombat Awareness Organisation with accounting, advice and on building projects. Samantha's family is also kept busy looking after their array of pets that include chickens, fish, 2 dogs and a Stimson's python.

RUSSELL BEDFORD GLOBAL NETWORK

Lee Green is proud to be part of something bigger to ensure our clients can access the best of the global accounting network, by becoming the first South Australian firm to join the Russell Bedford International team.

The Russell Bedford International network is a connected group of accountancy firms, sharing knowledge and developing ideas. Our involvement provides global learning and connection opportunities, bringing real meaning to the term "business without borders".

From Adelaide and Darwin, Lee Green is connected globally through our clients and as part of the Russell Bedford network. Our reception clocks display local times at Lee Green and Russell Bedford offices and international client locations, reminding us of our connections.

Through networking opportunities we have identified we face similar challenges to other member firms, and we are working together to provide first class services to all clients. Support from this growing network of professional firms – particularly around cloud computing and globalisation – provides a strength and scale beyond the resources of any one member.

"We are increasingly involved in cross-border transactions particularly in South East Asia and China, and our affiliation with Russell Bedford gives us the formal connections we have been seeking with advisers in other jurisdictions. We enjoy collaborating nationally as well, in supporting our existing clients and pursuing new business opportunities together."

RECONCILIATION ACTION PLAN

The Lee Green Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) provides a framework to support national reconciliation, including practical actions to drive our contribution internally and in the communities in which we operate.

Lee Green's RAP committee, assisted by our client Ochre Dawn Creative Industries, has developed our Innovate RAP, outlining actions allowing us to achieve our unique vision for reconciliation and building on our previous Reflect RAP. Our RAP commitments are aspirational and innovative, helping us gain a deeper understanding of our sphere of influence and establishing the best approach to advance reconciliation.

Since our RAP journey began in Adelaide and Darwin, Lee Green has:

- Employed our first Aboriginal cadet
- Further developed relationships with our indigenous clients and service providers

- Sponsored the Barunga Festival since 2016, allowing our staff members to immerse themselves in music, dance, sport and culture which they may not have otherwise considered
- Sponsored the Tiwi Bombers Football Club
- Attended the Garma Festival since 2017
- Provided Cultural Awareness Training for all staff, provided by our client, Haydyn Bromley from Bookabee Australia

Our RAP, which has been endorsed by Reconciliation Australia, is available for viewing on the Community page of our website.
